What is the role of forest products like mass timber in addressing climate change?

Join The Forests Dialogue and Partners for a discussion on the recent multi-stakeholder dialogue convened by The Forests Dialogue and World Resources Institute that explored perspectives on the potential implications of scaling up mass timber construction practices. We will share key insights, concerns and knowledge gaps that emerged from the dialogue. In particular, the event will highlight ongoing initiatives and next steps to ensure future mass timber utilization avoids unintended consequences and yields positive outcomes for forests, people, and the climate.
