

Agnes Quisumbing

Agnes Quisumbing is a Senior Research Fellow at the International Food Policy Research Institute, Washington DC. She has published widely on gender, intrahousehold allocation, women's empowerment, property rights, poverty, and economic mobility. Her early work at IFPRI tested models of household decisionmaking using primary data from Bangladesh, Ethiopia, Ghana, Indonesia, and her native Philippines. The evidence rejecting the unitary model of the household contributed to the design of programs targeting resources to women worldwide. She has conducted longitudinal studies following individuals and households over time, analyzing gendered patterns of asset accumulation and risk-sharing. She has developed metrics for evaluations of agricultural development projects to examine their impacts on gender asset inequality and women's empowerment. She is a co-developer of the Women's Empowerment in Agriculture Index (WEAI) and the project-level Women's Empowerment in Agriculture Index (pro-WEAI). She has served on the editorial boards of Agricultural Economics, Food Policy, and World Development. She is a 2021 Honorary Life Member of the International Association of Agricultural Economists, the Association's highest honor.