Healthy agriculture, Healthy food, Healthy economy

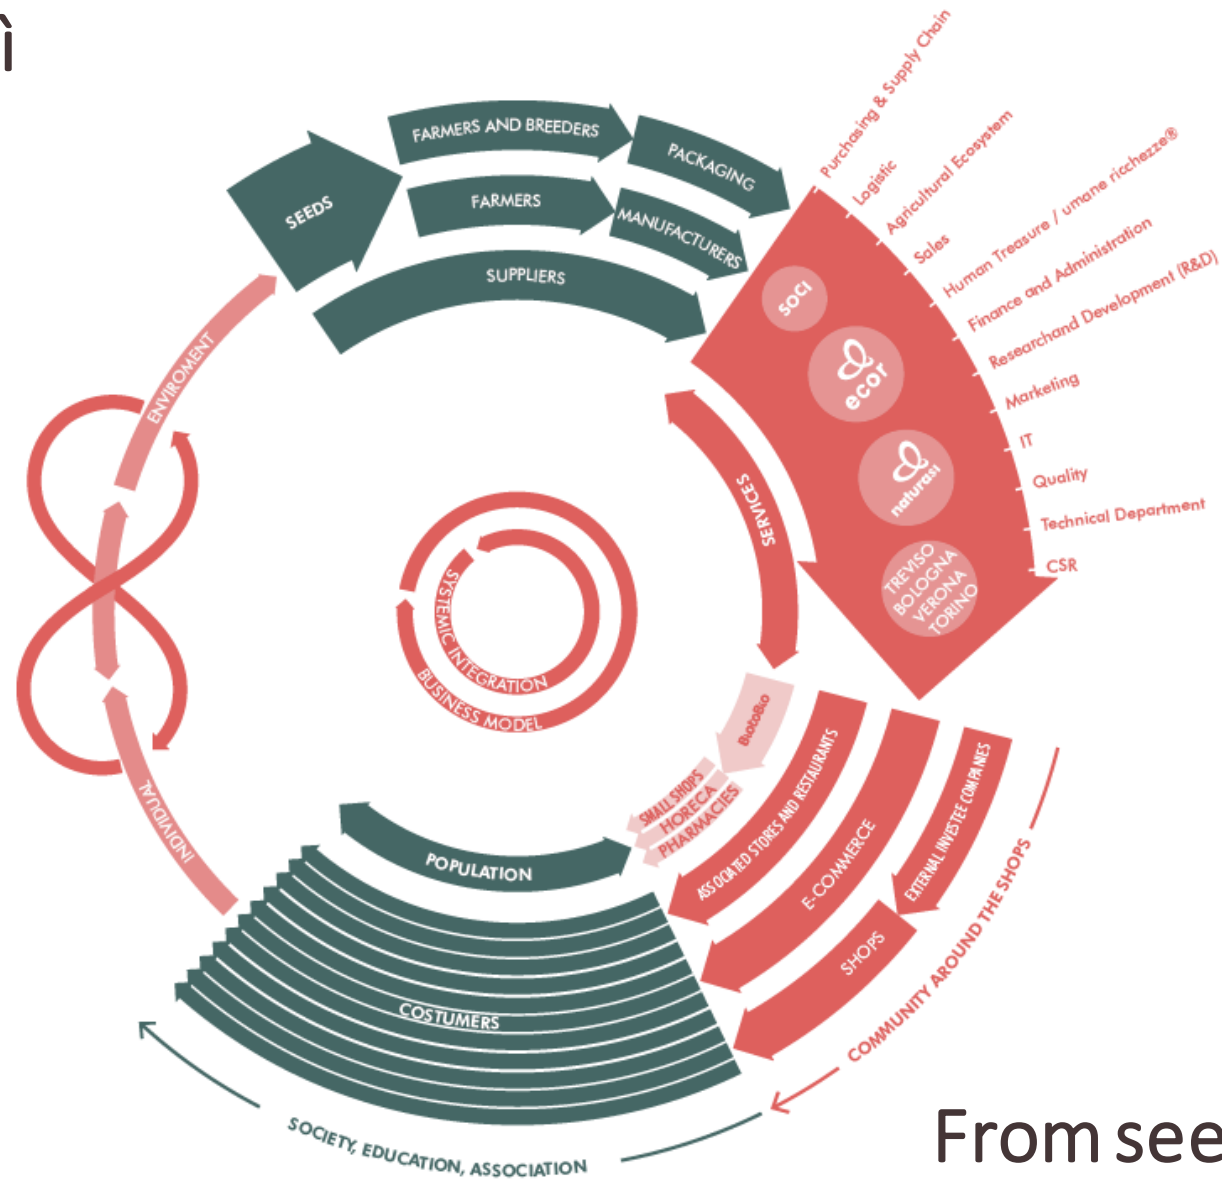

Working for the benefit of nature and humankind implies working according to the laws of life.

For this reason we view our company and all our stakeholders as living organism, part of a single ecosystem that needs to be healthy - economically, environmentally and socially.

Just as the human heart regulates the blood flow in the organism, so trading must act as a doctor to regulate the flows of the correct amounts of money (“right price”) and the right amount and quality of goods (“right product”), from production to consumption and vice versa.
